

Day 33

Daily Scripture Reading: John 7:38-39

Dear God,

I thank You that even though You know everything about me, You still love me. You know my thoughts, my mistakes, my sins, and yet You still call me Your child. Your grace toward me is beyond comprehension. More than anything else, I want to know You intimately and sense Your presence in my life each day. If there is any part of me that I have kept from You, show me so that I can invite You to rule and reign there. Come into me, Holy Spirit, and revive my soul with rivers of living water. Then flow out through me into a dry and thirsty world. Help me to keep my eyes fixed on You instead of others.

Lord, be my richest treasure always. Help me never to make an idol out of anyone or anything or allow possessions or the distractions of this world to get in front of You in any way. You are my healer, my hope, and my strength. When I need freedom, You are my deliverer. You are my shield from the Enemy, my counselor when I need guidance, and my stronghold in the day of trouble. Truly, You are the God of miracles. Work Your miracles of grace in my life and keep changing me from day to day into Your likeness.

In Jesus Name, Amen.
